Strawberry: The vitamin C in strawberries encourages iron absorption and improves hair growth. Lack of vitamin C leads to fragile hair and dandruff. The fruit also has a compound called silica, which prevents alopecia. The folic acid, vitamins B5, and B6 in strawberries also prevent hair loss. Strawberries are excellent cleansing agents. The vitamin C, salicylic acid, antioxidants, and exfoliants in strawberries remove dirt and impurities while soothing and hydrating. That's why many facial cleansers and foams contain strawberry extracts.

The oil is rich in oleic, palmitic, linoleic, palmitoleic acids, as well as other unsaturated acids such as linolenic and arachidic. It also contains variable amounts of unsaponifiable materials (max. 2%) consisting of: Vitamins A, B1, B2, C, and D, amino acids, volatile acids, sterols (sitosterol, campesterol), hydrocarbons, and lecithin. It replenishes the hair's vitamins: hair damaged and dried out by hair chemicals, which have lost the essential proteins of the hair fibers, can benefit from the high proportion of vitamins that avocado oil possesses.
